DELHI ATTRACTIONS

The Metro, words fall short when expressing the comfort and the hip element one experiences when riding in the Delhi metro. This intercity transport form has changed the traffic situation of the city by leaps and bounds. It is only through this distinguished feature that even in a city as big as Delhi nothing seems beyond reach.

CONNAUGHT PLACE, Another gem of Delhi is the age-old market that goes by the name Connaught place. The market was built by the British and has retained its charm over the years. The construction of this market is done in concentric circles and the mains are the inner circle and the outer circle

DELHI FOOD, As far as food is concerned, Delhi and old Delhi particularly is the mecca for almost all food lovers. The food that this place offers ranges from the scintillating paranthas at the Paranthas Wali Gali to the commendable bedmi puri in Fatehpuri. Not one but the availability of multiple cuisines in the city makes the place a complete paradise for any foodie.

LODI GARDEN, located on Lodi Road between Safdurjung's Tomb and Khan Market in south Delhi, covers an area of 90 acres and is dotted with beautiful monuments and tombs, belonging to the Sayyid, Lodi and Mughal dynasties. With its undulating walking paths and jogging tracks fringed with ancient trees, colorful shrubs and flowering plants, the garden's historical past is evidence of how the city's present encompasses within itself a rich past.

CHANDNI CHOWK is translated as Moonlight Street. This iconic area in Delhi houses one of the oldest markets in the city. You can buy everything you want at wholesale prices here. The hustle and bustle of the street, the colourful and quaint stores, and the constant banter between buyers and sellers are experiences you should not miss. Chandni Chowk has about 1500+ shops.
